Organisations and links:

These organisations, think tanks and institutions produce useful reports and data on women and employment.

Resolution Foundation Independent think-tank focused on improving the living standards of those on low-to-middle incomes.

Institute for Fiscal Studies Britain's leading independent microeconomic research institute. Its research remit is one of the broadest in public policy analysis, covering subjects from tax and benefits to education policy, from labour supply to corporate taxation.

Trades Union Congress (TUC) UK wide union representing 5.5 million working people. Carries out research on employment, industrial strategies, worker pay, equality, transport, pensions and benefits.

Runnymede Trust The UK's leading independent race equality think tank. Generates intelligence to challenge race inequality in Britain through research, network building, leading debate, and policy engagement.

Young Women's Trust Campaigns for young women's equality in the workplace. Research examines what young women's lives are really like. Young women are at the centre of the charity's work: leading, designing and participating.

Institute for Employment Studies Leading independent centre for research and evidence-based consultancy. Provides insights on employment and human resource management topics to help improve policy and practice.

Maternity Action The UK's leading charity committed to ending inequality and improving the health and wellbeing of pregnant women, partners and young children – from conception through to the child's early years.

Pregnant Then Screwed Leading charity working to end the motherhood penalty, campaigning on issues that impact pregnant women and working mums.

House of Commons Library An impartial research and information service for MPs and their staff (but also publicly available)

Citizens Advice Conducts policy research in a number of areas including employment, personal debt, housing, welfare and domestic abuse.
